WHAT IS A WEBHOOK?

Webhooks can be a highly technical subject if you want it to be, but if you break it down it's really quite easy to understand. First, let's look at a simple example:

Webhooks are an easy way for apps to communicate between one another when a set event occurs. Now let's look at how webhooks look on a more technical level.

This is how a webhook works. An event occurs and sends a signal to a middle point where the second application can pick up the event. Webhooks are versatile because they can be set to alert admins of multiple different incidences in their company.
